National benchmarking study on diversity and inclusion in the workplace

Open until | June 15, 2018

National data on diversity and inclusion practices in Canadian workplaces is lacking. Without this benchmarking information, it is difficult to compare the inclusivity of our workplace to other workplaces in Canada, let alone to other workplaces around the world. The need for national data was also commonly voiced to us during our 2017 EP consultation.

We heard you and we want to address this knowledge gap. We recognize that benchmarking data is a strong tool to help organizations establish robust diversity and inclusion goals and become a competitive organization within the Canadian labour market. Read more...
