CCDI | Community of practice
Inclusive leadership
In 18 cities, from
St. John's to Victoria
Spring 2019

What does it mean to be an inclusive leader? What should a leader be doing to ensure they are getting the most out of the people around them?

Based on current research and established frameworks in inclusive leadership, this Community of Practice event will explore the competencies of inclusive leaders and provide participants with strategies to build inclusion within their team and organizations. Leaders are all around us and exist in all levels of an organization – join us to learn how you can develop your inclusive leadership skills. Read more...

Nominate someone for an Award of Success!

There are many awards – in Canada, and around the world – that recognize employers for their commitment to diversity and inclusion. Yet there are relatively few honours that acknowledge the people who work tirelessly to help make their workplaces, and Canadian society, more inclusive.

CCDI's Awards of Success have been designed to recognize individuals who have made a significant contribution to diversity and inclusion here in Canada – whether internally to their organization or externally to the community at large. Read more...

Talking to Canadians

Call for participants

We want to talk to you!

CCDI is launching a podcast, and we need you! The series – Talking to Canadians – will explore the unique, lived experiences of people from various walks of life. Our goal is to help the listener understand something about a person whose life is different than theirs.

Interested in being interviewed? Shoot an email to communications@ccdi.ca with a few words about your story!

Lads and Lashes

Lads & Lashes is a unique fundraising event being held in Vancouver, BC on May 17, 2019, that seeks to stretch boundaries and explore diversity while demonstrating that sometimes stepping out of our comfort zones can not only be fun, but create a new perspective on life.

Organized by the Q Hall of Fame Canada in support of the Canadian Centre for Diversity and Inclusion, Lads & Lashes is a unique spin on the traditional team challenge events. Read more...
