Educational resources on recruiting and retaining young professionals

Young professionals are often seen as the future of work. As these young employees enter the workforce, employers have the potential to support and promote the launch of their careers. This educational guide provides employers with resources to better understand the values young people bring to the workplace. This guide also illustrates the steps you can take to encourage and nurture the development of young professionals.

Funding opportunities for hiring young professionals

- Canada Summer Jobs / Emplois d’été Canada offers wage subsidies for not-for-profit organizations, the public sector, and private sector organizations with 50 or fewer full-time employees, to create quality summer work experiences for young people aged 15 to 30 years.
- Industrial Research Assistance Program - Youth Employment Program / Programme d’aide à la recherche industrielle – Programme emploi jeunesse offers to pay a portion of wage related costs for incorporated and for-profit businesses in Canada to create business or technology jobs for youth.
- TECHNATION Career Ready Program / Le programme Career Ready de TECHNATION offers wage subsidy for Canadian businesses and non-profits who can provide a meaningful, tech-focused work placement opportunity to a student. Subsidy amounts are higher for employers hiring students from under-represented groups.
- Young Canada Works / Jeunesse Canada au travail offers subsidies to employers in the fields of heritage, arts, culture and official languages.
- Youth Employment and Skills Strategy / Stratégie emploi et compétences jeunesse offers funding to help youth, particularly those facing employment barriers, obtain job related information and gain the skills, work experience, and abilities they need to make a successful transition into the labour market.
